This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.

+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.

+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.

+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PREFACE.

This edition of the VIRI ROMAE is a response to the growing sentiment among teachers of Latin in secondary schools, that Caesar's Commentaries furnish Latin uninteresting and too difficult for pupils who have just finished the work of a first Latin book. The Latin Conference in its report to the Committee of Ten said:

"The summoning of the Conference afforded a fortunate opportunity for the discussion of an important question not included in the memorandum, namely, what authors and what parts of authors, should constitute the reading of the preparatory schools? Thus far, the colleges have in general left the schools very little liberty of choice. Three authors have been named by every college that prescribes set work. Of these three the easiest, or, as one should perhaps say, the least difficult, is Caesar. Hence it has come about that the Gallic War is very commonly used as the first reading-book in Latin. Our American schools are probably the only ones in the world of which this is true. The choice is an unfortunate one. The book is altogether too difficult for beginners; it is too exclusively military in contents to be generally interesting; its vocabulary is too largely restricted, from the nature of the subject, to marches, sieges, and battles, to afford the best introduction to subsequent reading; and, finally, it touches human life at too few points to be morally helpful and significant. The Conference therefore makes two recommendations: first, that some easy reading, such as Gradatim, Eutropius, or the Viri Romae, be used as a transition from the introductory work of the beginner's book to the regular reading of a classic; and second, that at least a portion of the time now usually given to Caesar be taken from him and given to Nepos."

The editors of this book believe it to be suitable for pupils in the earlier stages of study for the following reasons. (1) The subject matter is in itself interesting. (2) The Latin is not too difficult for pupils who have been thoroughly drilled in any of the manuals for beginners published in this country. (3) The vocabulary contains a large percentage of the words found in the Latin read in preparatory schools, as may be seen from the following comparison. In the vocabulary of this book there are 3225 words. Among these are 1725 of the 2565 words in Cornelius Nepos, 1440 of the 2190 words in Caesar's Gallic War, Bks. I . . . IV, 1840 of the 2800 words in Sallust's Catiline and Jugurthine War, 2400 of the 4465 in the orations of Cicero found in the editions of Profs. Johnston and Harkness. In making this comparison all proper names were excluded.

The text is that of the tenth edition of C. Holzer (Stuttgart 1889). Thirty-five selections from that edition have been made and furnished with page vocabularies and notes.

Throughout text and vocabularies the quantity of long vowels has been marked. In this we have followed, with the exception of evident misprints, Lewis's Elementary Latin Dictionary and Latin Dictionary for Schools, the latter chiefly in proper names.

The page vocabularies are in accordance with the plan of the Inter-Collegiate Series. Where a word first occurs it is given with selected definitions in the vocabulary for the page.

For convenience of pupil and teacher the notes are placed on the same page with the text. The notes on selections I . . . XXV are both grammatical and historical, those on XXVI . . . XXXV historical only.

In the grammatical notes the following plan has been pursued. The first occurrence of a given construction is noticed by citation of grammar references or by suitable explanation. The second occurrence of the construction is noticed by a reference (by use of the words "see on") to the note on the first occurrence, a key word (case, mood, tense etc.) being given as a guide to the student. The third occurrence of the construction is noticed by a reference (by use of the word "compare," "cf.") to the text of the second occurrence. Succeeding occurrences are noticed similarly to the third. The following illustration will make the plan clear. In line 49 of selection II we have fōrmā, ablative of quality; grammar references are given. The same construction occurs in line 1 of selection III; the reference is, iūstitiā, religiōne, case, see on fōrmā, II 49. Again in III 16, fōrmā, case, cf. iūstitiā l. 1. Again in VII 36, animō, case, cf. fōrmā, III 16. On the first two notices the pupil is therefore referred to his grammar or note explanation, afterward merely to an illustration in the text.

At the end of the notes on each of selections I . . . . XXV will be found a short list of questions on grammatical points elsewhere noted, case, mood, tense etc.

At the head of selections XIV . . . . XXXV are given short summaries of the principal events in the lives of the characters, with dates B. C.

The exercises for translation are based on the text of selections I XXV. They were made with a special view to the points of syntax explained in the notes. The editors believe this to be a most effective method of fixing the principles of Latin constructions.

For purposes of reference and topical study a complete index to the notes is given.

The general vocabulary contains complete definitions of all words in all passages. On proper names a reference is made to the place of first occurrence in the text.

Three maps have been designed specially for this edition, one of ancient Rome, one of Italy, and one of the Roman dominions. The location of all places mentioned in the text is indicated by references to the maps, both in general and page vocabularies, by the common device of cross-sections.

To prevent improper use of notes and page vocabularies a text edition is furnished for use in the class-room.

The grammars referred to are those of Allen and Greenough, revised edition, Gildersleeve, revised edition of 1894, Harkness, Standard edition, and Preble's revision of Andrews and Stoddard.

From a note prefixed to Charrier's edition of the VIRI ROMAE we learn that Charles Francois Lhomond was Professor Emeritus in the University of Paris, and lived from 1727 to 1794; that he devoted himself, from preference, to the instruction of younger pupils, steadily declining positions of greater distinction; that during the more than twenty years in which he was engaged in teaching, the desire to make himself useful to the young constituted the happiness of his life and inspired him to the production of unusually successful elementary works.

In Lhomond's preface we are told that he compiled from Livy, Valerius Maximus, Florus, and others, the VIRI ROMAE, his purpose being to awaken the interest of his pupils, while at the same time he endeavored to shape their characters, by making prominent deeds of valor, of mercy, of unselfishness, of magnanimity, and of kindness. A few minor alterations in the text he found necessary to his purpose, such as the shortening of sentences which were too long, and an occasional change in the order of the words. Otherwise the Latin is substantially that of the authors cited.

31–32. Nunc . . . virīs, 'now they find that seizing maidens is quite a different thing from fighting with men.' sciunt has the same construction following as a verb of saying; the thought or words of the Romans was, 'longē aliud est rapere virginēs,' in which the infinitive rapere is subject nominative and aliud a predicate adjective, nom. case and neuter gender to agree with rapere. In the reported thought of the Romans as given by the Sabines, est becomes infinitive and rapere accusative subject, with aliud, accusative, still in the predicate. For change of est to esse, A. 336, 1, 2; G. 650; H. 523, I; P. 515 (2); tense, A. 336 A; G. 656; H. 537; P. 538. rapere, used as subject, A. 270, 1; G. 419, 422; H. 538; P. 531, a. pūgnāre, sc. esse. virīs, case, A. 248 b; G. 392; H. 419, III 1 2); P. 410.

ductory word, see on peterent l. 6. senātōrēs; their original function was to give advice and not to legislate. Theoretically this was never changed, but their decrees, cōnsulta, came in time to have the force of laws. Their number was increased in the time of the republic to 300, and later to 500 or 600. During the republic anyone holding a curule office became a senator at the expiration of his term.

42. equitum; originally, as here, a real division of the army, mounted at public expense. They were early supplanted in the field by bodies of foreign troops. cūriās; the people are supposed to have been composed of three tribes, Ramnēs, Tities, and Lūceres, each containing ten cūriae.

43. lūstrandum, for use with ad to denote purpose, A. 300; G. 432; H. 544, 1; P. 551. Contrast ēducandōs, I 14, expressing purpose after a verb of giving. The lūstrum was a solemn ceremony of purification, in which the Suovetaurīlia, a pig, ram, and bull, was conducted three times around the whole army and then sacrificed to Mars.

44. campō, called Campus Mārtius after the expulsion of the kings, in honor of Mars. The part near the river was used as an exercise ground by the Roman youth for athletics, riding, or military drill; on the part near the city was held the great assembly of the people, Comitia Centuriāta, and the lūstrum. oppidum, -ī, N., town, city.
accīō, 4, a., call, summon, invite.

1-2. Rōmulō, case, cf. arcī II 19. Numa Pompilius; probably mythical like Romulus. He was in direct contrast to the latter; Romulus is represented as founder of the city and originator of its political and military institutions. Numa, as the organizer of its religious institutions, is mild and peace-loving. iūstitiā, religiōne, case, see on fōrmā II 49. Curibus, case, A. 258 a; G. 391; H. 412, II; P. 426, (1). oppidō, case, A. 258 b N. 3; G. 391, Rem. 1; H. 425, 3, 2, N.; P. 426 h.

3. Rōmam, case, see on Albam I 21. religiōne, case, cf. certāminibus I 15. mītigāret, mood, tense, and introductory word, see on prīvāret I 3.

5. alendum, 'to be tended,' 'to be kept up'; use, see on ēducandōs I 14. virginibus; for explanation, see on Vestae I 4. There is an apparent inconsistency here in ascribing to Numa the founding of a priestly order, one of whose members was the mother of Romulus and Remus. Livy says the order originated at Alba. Flāminem; flāmen was the name applied to any Roman priest devoted to one particular deity. His office was for life. His priestly dress consisted of a garment called the laena, fastened at the throat by a brooch, and a white conical cap, apex, having an olive branch and woolen thread at the top. The flāmen of Jupiter, flāmen Diālis, was the most honored and privileged.

6. curūlī sellā, 'curule chair,' the chair of office belonging to the kings, and later to curule magistrates. It was of ivory, without a back, and with curved legs, like those of a camp-stool, so arranged that it could be folded up. The seat was of plaited leather straps. The curule magistrates sat on this seat while engaged in all official business, and also took it with them in war.

7. Dīcitur, use, see on crēditus est II 46.

all places of entrance and passage, all doors and gates; many of these last named were especially dedicated to him. He was represented as a porter with a staff and key in his hands, and with two bearded faces placed back to back. His authority extended over war as well as peace, hence the portae here referred to, an arch built near the forum. When war was declared the double doors of this were opened and the Roman army marched through. These gates were kept open during war and closed during peace. From Numa's reign till the Christian era they were closed four times only, and twice in the reign of Augustus.

24-25. fīlium ... praetextā bullāque dōnāvit, 'presented his son with a toga praetexta and bulla'; for cases, see on and contrast moenia urbī V 21. With praetextā sc. togā; the toga was the distinctive garb of the Roman citizen in public. It was usually of white woolen cloth, semicircular in cut, about five yards long by four wide, so enveloping the body as to leave the right arm free. The toga praetexta was ornamented with a broad border of purple, and was worn by freeborn children of both sexes, also by the chief magistrates; at about 17 young men put it aside for the toga virīlis, 'toga of manhood,' which was of pure white wool. bullā; usually of gold, worn suspended from the neck by Roman children, The golden bulla was globular (bulla means 'water-bubble') and contained an amulet; it was laid aside with the toga praetexta, dedicated to the Larēs, guardian spirits of the household, and hung up over the hearth. annōrum, case, A. 215, b; G. 365, Rem. 2; H. 396, V, N. 1; P. 356. percussisset, mood, A. 321, 2, N. 1; G. 541; H. 516, II; P. 519.

13. consulēs; they held office a year, were the ordinary presiding officers of the Senate, directed its deliberations, and executed its orders. They took precedence over all other magistrates in summoning the Senate and comitia centuriata. It was their duty to raise armies for war and to command them in the field. They were the representatives of the kingly power in the new republic. Their powers were much reduced in the course of time and many of their duties were assigned to new magistrates.

2. plūrimōs et nōbilissimōs puerōs, 'a large number of boys of the highest rank.'

3. ēductōs perdūxit, 'lead out and conducted.'

4–5. Quibus trāditīs, 'if they had been betrayed.' Quibus, case and force, cf. precibus XIII 32. trāditīs, use, cf. obiectō X 6. nōn erat dubium, quīn ... dēditūrī essent, 'there was no doubt that the Falisci would have stopped the war and surrendered to the Romans.' erat; its subject is the clause, quīn . . . essent. dēditūrī essent, lit. 'were going to surrender;' mood, see on āgnōsceret I 26. Notice that the subjunctive is due not only to quīn, but also to the condition implied in Quibus trāditīs; in such cases the simple pluperfect is rare, the periphrastic form being used instead, the fut. part. showing clearly the idea of contingency. Form, see on rēgnātūrus esset IX 8.

6. ad similem tuī, 'to a man like yourself.' tuī, case, see on suī XI 12.

"vēnistī: sunt et bellī, sīcut păcis, iūra: arma habēmus nōn adversus eam aetātem, cuī etiam captīs urbibus parcitur, sed adversus armātōs, quī nec laesī nec lacēssītī ā nōbīs castra Rōmāna ad Vēiōs oppūgnāvērunt." Dēnūdārī deinde magistrum iussit, eumque manibus post tergum illigātīs in urbem rēdūcendum puerīs trādidit virgāsque iīs dedit, quibus prōditōrem agerent in urbem verberantēs. Statim Faliscī, beneficiō magis quam armīs victī, portās Rōmānīs aperuērunt.

XVI. TITUS MANLIUS TORQUATUS.

Titus Manlius Torquatus, of a patrician family, a favorite hero of Roman story, a brave man, obedient son, and severe father. The accusation against his father was made in 362 B. C. 361, served against the Gauls, killed a gigantic Gaul in single combat. 353, Dictator in war against Caerites and Etruscans. 349, Dictator. 347, 344, 340, Consul, the last time with P. Decius Mus. They gained a decisive victory over the Latins at the foot of Vesuvius, which established the supremacy of Rome over Latium. Before this battle occurred the incident of his son's disobedience and execution.

Titus Mānlius ob ingeniī et linguae tarditātem ā patre rūs relēgātus erat. Quī cum audīvisset, patrī diem dictam esse ā Pompōniō, tribūnō plēbis, cēpit cōnsilium rudis quidem et agrestis animī, sed pietāte laudābile. Cultrō succinctus mā-

XIX. GAIUS FABRICIUS.

Gaius Fabricius Luscinus came to Rome from the Hernican town Aletrium, probably about 360. 285, ambassador to the Tarentines. 282, Consul, defeated the Lucanians, Bruttians, and Samnites. 280, legate under Laevinus in the campaign against Pyrrhus, and at its close sent as one of the Roman ambassadors to Pyrrhus to negotiate ransom or exchange of prisoners. 279, served again as legate and shared in the defeat at the battle of Asculum. 278, Consul, had conduct of the war against Pyrrhus, and after the latter's evacuation of Italy subdued the king's allies in southern Italy. 277, favored Cornelius Rufinus for the consulship. 275, Censor, distinguished himself for severity in suppressing luxury.

Ex lēgātīs, quī ad Pyrrhum dē captīvīs redimendīs vēnerant, fuit C. Fabricius. Cūius postquam audīvit Pyrrhus māgnum esse apud Rōmānōs nōmen, ut virī bonī et bellō ēgregiī, sed admodum pauperis, eum prae cēterīs honōrificē āc līberāliter habuit eīque mūnera atque aurum obtulit: quae omnia repudiāvit Fabricius. Posterō diē cum illum Pyrrhus vellet exterrēre cōnspectū subitō elephantī, imperāvit suīs ut Fabriciō sēcum colloquente bēlua post aulaeum admovērētur. Quod ubi factum est, sīgnō datō remōtōque aulaeō repente bēlua strīdōrem horrendum ēmīsit et probōscidem super Fabriciī caput dēmīsit. Sed ille subrīdens: "Neque herī mē aurum tuum pellēxit, neque hodiē perterrēfēcit bēlua."

Annō interiectō, omnī spē pācis inter Pyrrhum et Rōmānōs conciliandae ablātā, Fabricius cōnsul factus contrā eum mīssus est. The salīnum was used both for salt sprinkled over the altar at a sacrifice, and that used at meals. It usually consisted of a cup standing in a dish or saucer; because of its use in the domestic sacrifice it was an object of veneration in the family, so that persons even of slender means were ambitious to possess one of silver. The patella was a small, round, shallow dish, of silver if the household could afford it. In it solid viands were offered as a feast to the gods, and especially to the Larēs, the good spirits of the departed.

There were two censors, elected at intervals of four or five years and holding office eighteen months. Their duty was to assemble the people every five years on the campus Martius to take the census. They also had control over the state's finances, in the collection of revenues and in superintending the construction and maintenance of public works. They had the power of fixing a stigma on a citizen by removing him from the senate, if a senator, from the equestrian order, if a knight, and if a common citizen, from a country tribe to a less respectable city tribe or by expelling him from the tribes altogether; this would be done for offences not punishable by law, for instance, luxurious living, as in this case.

XX. MANIUS CURIUS.

Manius Curius Dentatus, of a plebeian gens. 290, Consul with P. Cornelius Rufinus. They defeated the Samnites and brought the Samnite wars to a close. In the same year Dentatus defeated the Sabines. 283, Praetor, fought against the Senones. 275, Consul, defeated Pyrrhus near Beneventum and in the Arusinian plain. 274, Consul, conquered the Lucanians, Samnites, and Bruttians, who were still in arms after the defeat of Pyrrhus. He then retired to his small farm in the Sabine country. 272, Censor, executed public works of great importance, commenced viaduct from the river Anio to the city, and a canal from lake Velinus to the river Nar.

XXI. MARCUS ATILIUS REGULUS.

Marcus Atilius Regulus, of a plebeian gens. 267, Consul, conquered the Sallentini, took Brundisium, and celebrated a triumph. 256, Consul with L. Manlius Vulso Longus. They defeated a Carthaginian fleet, landed in Africa with a large force, and met with great success. Manlius returned to Rome with half the army, while Regulus remained to carry on the war. He inflicted a severe defeat on the Carthaginians, compelling them to retire within the city. 255, Regulus in turn was defeated and taken prisoner by the Carthaginians, who were helped by Xanthippus, a Lacedaemonian general. 250, sent to Rome with ambassadors to solicit peace, was said to have been tortured to death on his return. The stories of his torture and death are not related on good authority.

Mārcus Rēgulus cum Poenōs māgnā clāde affēcisset, Hannō Carthāginiēnsis ad eum vēnit, quasi dē pāce āctūrus, rēvērā ut tempus extraheret, dōnec novae cōpiae ex Āfricā advenīrent. Is ubi ad cōnsulem accessit, exortus est mīlitum clāmor audītaque vōx, idem huīc faciendum esse, quod paucīs ante annīs Cornēliō cōnsulī ā Poenīs factum esset. Cornēlius enim velut in colloquium per fraudem ēvocātus ā Poenīs comprehēnsus erat et in vincula cōniectus. Iam Hannō timēre incipiēbat, sed perīculum astūtō respōnsō āvertit: "Hōc vērō," inquit, "sī fēceritis, nihilō eritis Āfrīs meliōrēs." Cōnsul tacēre iussit eōs, quī pār parī referrī

XXIII. PAULUS AEMILIUS ET TERENTIUS VARRO.

L. Aemilius Paulus, of a patrician gens. 219, Consul, conquered Demetrius, a Greek of the island of Pharos. 216, Consul with C. Terentius Varro. The two were defeated in the battle of Cannae, Paulus perishing in the engagement.

C. Terentius Varro is said to have been the son of a butcher and to have carried on the business himself in his early years. He rose to eminence by pleading the causes of the lower classes. 216, Consul with L. Aemilius Paulus, defeated at Cannae. He was afterwards employed in Italy for several successive years in important military commands till nearly the close of the Punic war.

Hannibal in Āpūliam pervēnerat. Adversus eum Rōmā profectī sunt duo cōnsulēs, Paulus Aemilius et Terentius Varrō. Paulō Fabiī cunctātiō magis placēbat; Varrō autem, ferōx et temerārius, ācriōra sequēbātur cōnsilia. Ambō cōnsulēs ad vīcum, quī Cannae appellābātur, castra commūnīvē-

XXIV. MARCUS CLAUDIUS MARCELLUS.

Marcus Claudius Marcellus, of an illustrious plebeian family. 222, Consul, conquered the Insubrians in Cisalpine Gaul, winning the spolia opīma by slaying in battle with his own hand the enemy's king. 216, Praetor, rendered important service in southern Italy after the battle of Cannae. 214, Consul, carried on war in southern Italy. In the summer of this year he was sent to Sicily, many of whose cities were favorable to the Carthaginians. He besieged Syracuse and took the city, 212. 210, Consul, had charge of the war against Hannibal and fought an indecisive battle in Lucania. 208, Consul, killed in a cavalry reconnaissance near Venusia, at the age of 60.

Claudius Mārcellus praetor Hannibalem vincī posse prīmus docuit. Cum enim ad Nōlam Hannibal accessisset spē urbis per prōditiōnem recipiendae, Mārcellus īnstrūctā ante urbis portam aciē cum eō cōnflīxit et Poenōs fūdit. Pulsus Hannibal exercitum ad Casilīnum, parvam Campāniae urbem, dūxit. In eā quanquam parvum erat praesidium, tamen pēnūria frūmentī efficiēbat, ut nimium hominum esse vidērētur. Hannibal prīmō cīvēs verbīs benīgnīs ad portās aperiendās coepit pellicere; deinde cum in Rōmānōrum fidē perstārent, accēdit ad urbem, mōlīrī portās et claustra refringere parat. XXV. PUBLIUS CORNELIUS SCIPIO AFRICANUS.

Publius Cornelius Scipio Africanus Maior, of an illustrious patrician family. Born 237. 218, fought in the battle of the Ticinus. 216, fought at Cannae, and after the battle was chosen with Appius Claudius to command the remains of the army. 212, Aedile, though not of the legal age. 210, chosen to take command in Spain, where he gained rapid success, taking New Carthage and driving the Carthaginians entirely out of Spain in three years. 206, returned to Rome, elected Consul for ensuing year. Being anxious to carry the war into Africa, he was opposed by the senate. He received Sicily as a province and permission to cross over to Africa. He raised an army of volunteers, went to Africa, and defeated the Carthaginians so thoroughly that they were compelled to recall Hannibal. 202, defeated Hannibal near Zama. 201, returned to Italy and entered Rome in triumph. He took no prominent part in public affairs during the next few years. 199, Censor. 194, Consul with Ti. Sempronius Longus. 193, sent as ambassador to Antiochus at Ephesus, where occured his interview with Hannibal. 190, served as legate under his brother Lucius in a war against Antiochus the Great. Upon their return they were prosecuted for embezzling money received from Antiochus. Scipio's last years were spent at his country seat at Liternum.

Hannibal ā Scīpiōne vīctus suīsque invīsus, ad Antiochum Syriae rēgem, cōnfūgit eumque hostem Rōmānīs fēcit. Mīssī sunt Rōmā lēgātī ad Antiochum; in quibus erat Scīpiō Āfricānus: quī cum Hannibale Ephesī collocūtus ab eō quaesīvit, quem fuisse māximum imperātōrem crēderet. Respondit Hannibal, Alexandrum, Macedōnum rēgem, māximum sibi vidērī, quod parvā manū innumerābilēs exercitūs fūdisset. Quaerentī deinde, quem secundum pōneret: "Pyrrhum," inquit, "quod prīmus castra mētārī docuit nēmōque illō ēlegantius loca cēpit et praesidia disposuit." Scīscitantī dēnique, quem tertium dūceret, sēmet ipsum dīxit. Tum rīdēns Scīpiō: "Quidnam tū dīcerēs," inquit, "sī mē vīcissēs?" "Tum mē vērō," respondit Hannibal, "et ante Alexandrum et ante Pyrrhum et ante omnēs aliōs imperātōrēs posuissem." Ita improvīsō adsentātiōnis genere Scīpiōnem ē grege imperātōrum velut inaestimābilem sēcernēbat.

VIRI ROMAE ILLUSTRES

DECLINE OF THE REPUBLIC.

XXVI. TIBERIUS GRACCHUS ET GAIUS GRACCHUS.

Tiberius Sempronius Gracchus, of a plebeian gens. Served in Africa under his brother-in-law, Scipio Africanus Minor; was present at the destruction of Carthage 146. 137, Quaestor, accompanied the consul to Spain. On his way to Spain he observed the wretched condition of the farms in Italy and of the poorer classes of Roman citizens who had been supplanted as laborers by slaves. He resolved to remedy their condition by creating an industrious middle class of agriculturists. 133, Tribune, revived Licinian Law which limited the amount of land to be held by individuals; also had public lands distributed to poorer classes. His unlawful measures to gain the tribuneship for the ensuing year led to his death.

Caius Gracchus, brother of Tiberius, was in Spain at the time of his brother's death. 132, returned to Rome. 126, Quaestor, served in Sardinia. 123, returned to Rome. 123, Tribune of the plebs. His reforms were more extensive than those of Tiberius, amounting almost to revolution. 122, Tribune again, outbid for popular favor by M. Livius Drusus, failed to obtain tribuneship for the next year. 121, tried to oppose the repeal of his laws passed the previous year. Opimius the consul was ordered to proceed against him, and Gaius met with death as related in the text.

13. perturbāre māluērunt; This account of the Gracchi was written from the standpoint of the senatorial party and is prejudiced and unfair. The Gracchi, though at times advocating unwise measures, still were honestly devoted to the interests of the people and are to be regarded as true reformers.

17. agrōs plēbī dīvidēbat; the public lands had fallen into the hands of a few large land-holders, who maintained them chiefly by slave labor. The smaller farmers by the pressure of various unfortunate circumstances were being gradually driven into the towns and cities. Tiberius proposed to revive an old law, now a dead letter, which forbade any citizen to hold more than five hundred jugera of land. All the rest of the public land was to be divided among the poorer citizens. On the public lands and the reforms of the Gracchi see Meyer, pp. 78–91; Pennell pp. 94–98.

the office of tribune could not legally be held by the same person two successive years. Tiberius violating this law and resorting to force to secure a re-election was overpowered and killed.

XXVII. GAIUS MARIUS.

Gaius Marius, of an obscure family. Born near Arpinum, 157. 134, distinguished himself for valour at the siege of Numantia in Spain. 119, Tribune of the plebs. Afterwards elected Praetor. Married Julia, aunt of Julius Caesar. 109, served in Africa as legate under Q. Metellus in the war against Jugurtha. Returned to Rome and was elected Consul. 107, received Numidia as his province and conduct of war against Jugurtha. 106, Jugurtha surrendered. 104, Consul. 103, Consul. 102, Consul, utterly defeated the Teutones at Aquae Sextiae. 101, Consul, joined forces with the proconsul Catulus and destroyed the Cimbri near Vercellae.

He reorganized the Roman army, making it much more efficient. 100, Consul, drove Metellus into exile, crushed an insurrection headed by the demagogues Saturninus and Glaucia. 90, served in the Social war. 88, attempted to wrest the command of the Mithridatic war from Sulla, but was compelled to flee for his life. 87, returned to Rome, joined forces with the consul Cinna and massacred his opponents. 86, Consul with Cinna, died after holding office thirteen days.

10. Q. Metellum . . . Iugurtham; Jugurtha had made himself king of Numidia by murdering the lawful heirs to the throne, whose claims had been sustained by the Romans. Commissioners sent out to investigate were bought off by Jugurtha. Popular indignation finally compelled the Senate to declare war, the management of which was entrusted to Quintus Caecilius Metellus, an able and upright man, with Gaius Marius as his lieutenant.

Dēlētīs Teutonibus C. Marius in Cimbrōs sē convertit. Quī cum ex aliā parte Ītaliam ingressī Athesim flūmen nōn pōnte nec nāvibus, sed iniectīs arborum truncīs, velut aggere, trāiēcissent, occurrit iīs C. Marius. Cimbrī lēgātōs ad cōnsulem mīsērunt, agrōs urbēsque sibi et frātribus postulantēs: Teutonum enim clādem īgnōrābant. Quaerente Mariō, quōs illī frātrēs dīcerent, cum Teutonēs nōmināssent, rīdēns Marius: "Omittite," inquit, "frātrēs; tenent hī acceptam ā nōbīs terram aeternumque tenēbunt." Tum lēgātī sē lūdibriō habērī sentientēs ultiōnem Mariō minātī sunt, simul atque Teutonēs advēnissent. "Atquī adsunt," inquit Marius, "nec sānē cīvīle foret, vōs frātribus vestrīs nōn salūtātīs discēdere." Tum vinctōs addūcī iussit Teutonum ducēs, quī in proeliō captī erant.

Hīs rēbus audītīs Cimbrī ēgrediuntur castrīs et cum paucīs suōrum ad vāllum Rōmānum adequitāns Boiorix, Cimbrōrum dux, Marium ad pūgnam prōvocat et diem pūgnae ā Rōmānōrum imperātōre petit. Proximum dedit cōnsul.

Marius cum aciem ita īnstituisset, ut pulvis in oculōs et ōra hostium ferrētur, incrēdibilī strāge prōstrāta est illa Cimbrōrum multitūdō: caesa trāduntur centum octōgintā hominum mīlia. Nec minor cum uxōribus pūgna quam cum virīs fuit, cum obiectīs undique plaustrīs dēsuper, quasi ē turribus, lanceīs contīsque pūgnārent. Victae tamen cum mīssā ad Marium lēgātiōne lībertātem nōn impetrāssent, suffōcātīs ēlīsīsque īnfantibus suīs aut mūtuīs concidērunt vulneribus aut vinculō ē crīnibus suīs factō ab arboribus pependērunt. Canēs quoque dēfendēre Cimbrīs caesīs eōrum domōs. Marius prō duōbus triumphīs, quī offerēbantur, ūnō contentus fuit. Prīmōrēs cīvitātis, quī eī aliquamdiū ut novō hominī ad tantōs honōrēs ēvēctō invīderant, cōnservātam ab eō rempūblicam fatēbantur. XXVIII. LUCIUS CORNELIUS SULLA.

Lucius Cornelius Sulla, of a patrician family. Born 138. 107, Quaestor, served in Africa under Marius. Also served against the Teutons and Cimbri. 93, Praetor. 92, Propraetor in Cilicia. 90–89, took an active part in the Social war. 88, Consul, entrusted with command in the Mithridatic war, expelled from Rome by Marius, returned and drove Marius out. 87, set out for the East, spent three years in subduing it. 83, returned to Italy and gained decided victories over the Marian party. 82, fought a decisive battle at the Colline gate of Rome, thereby becoming master of Rome and Italy. Began his proscriptions. Appointed Dictator for an indefinite time. 80, Consul. 79, resigned dictatorship and retired to Puteoli. 78, died at the age of sixty. During his dictatorship he effected many important changes in the Roman constitution.

Cornēlius Sulla cum parvulus ā nūtrīce ferrētur, mulier obvia: "Salvē," inquit, "puer tibi et reīpūblicae tuae fēlīx," et statim quaesīta, quae haec dīxisset, nōn potuit invenīrī.

Hīc bellō Iugurthīnō quaestor Mariī fuit. Quī cum usque ad quaestūrae comitia vītam libīdine, vīnō, lūdicrae artis amōre inquinātam perdūxisset, C. Marius cōnsul molestē tulisse trāditur, quod sibi gravissimum bellum gerentī tam dēlicātus quaestor sorte obvēnisset. Ēiusdem tamen, postquam in Āfricam vēnit, virtūs ēnituit. Bellō Cimbricō, lēgātus cōnsulis, bonam operam nāvāvit. Cōnsul ipse deinde factus pulsō in exsilium Mariō adversus Mithridātem profectus est. bātur. Āc prīmō Sulla illīus praefectōs duōbus proeliīs in Graeciā prōflīgāvit; dein trānsgressus in Asiam Mithridātem ipsum fūdit; et oppressisset, nisi ad bellum cīvīle adversus Marium festīnāns quālemcunque pācem compōnere māluisset. Mithridātem tamen pecūniā multāvit; Asiā aliīsque prōvinciīs, quās occupāverat, dēcēdere paternīsque fīnibus contentum esse coēgit.

Sulla propter mōtūs urbānōs cum vīctōre exercitū Rōmam properāvit; eōs, quī Mariō favēbant, omnēs superāvit. Nihil autem eā vīctōriā fuit crūdēlius. Sulla, urbem ingressus et dictātor creātus, vel in eōs, quī sē sponte dēdiderant, iussit animadvertī. Quattuor mīlia dēditōrum inermium cīvium in circō interficī iussit. Quis autem illōs potest computāre quōs in urbe passim, quisquis voluit, occīdit, dōnec admonēret Fūfidius quīdam, vīvere aliquōs dēbēre, ut essent, quibus imperāret? XXIX. QUINTUS SERTORIUS

Quintus Sertorius, of obscure parentage. Served under Marius against the Teutons. 97, Tribune of the soldiers in Spain. 91, Quaestor. 88, sided with Marius against Sulla. 83, Praetor, assigned Spain as his province, raised an army and for several years defied the power of Rome. 79, Metellus Pius was sent against him but with no success. 76, Pompey arrived in Spain, and with Metellus was kept at bay for five years. 72, Sertorius was assassinated at a banquet.

Q. Sertōrius, īgnōbilī locō nātus, prīma stīpendia bellō Cimbricō fēcit, in quō honōs eī virtūtis causā habitus est. In prīmā adversus Cimbrōs pūgnā, quanquam vulnerātus, Rhodanum, flūmen rapidissimum, nandō trāiēcit, lōrīcā et scūtō retentīs. Ēgregia etiam sociālī bellō fuit ēius opera. In eō cum alter oculus eī esset effossus, id nōn dehonestāmentum ōrī, sed ōrnāmentum arbitrābātur; dīcēbat enim, cētera bellicae fortitūdinis īnsīgnia, ut armillās corōnāsve, nec semper nec ubīque gestārī; sē vērō, quotiēscunque in pūblicum prōdīret, suae virtūtis pīgnus in ipsā frōnte ostentāre nec quemquam sibi occurrere, quī nōn esset laudum suārum admīrātor.

Postquam Sulla ex bellō Mithridāticō in Ītaliam reversus coepit dominārī, Sertōrius, quī partium Mariānārum fuerat, in Hispāniam sē contulit. Ibi tum virtūtis admīrātiōne, tum imperiī lēnitāte Hispānōrum simul āc Rōmānōrum, quī

XXX. GNAEUS POMPEIUS MAGNUS.

Gnaeus Pompeius Magnus, of a plebeian gens. Born 106. 89, fought in the Social War. In the Civil War between Marius and Sulla he sided with the latter. 84, raised an army in Picenum in Sulla's interests. Displayed great military ability in this war. 81, crossed over to Africa and gained a victory over the Numidian king Iarbus. Returned to Rome, was greeted by Sulla with the surname Magnus. Received a triumph. After Sulla's death (78) still remained faithful to the aristocratic party agaist the Marian party. 76–71, fought in Spain against Sertorius. 71, returned to Rome, elected Consul for 70, along with M. Crassus. Deserted the aristocratic party and posed as a popular leader. 67, entrusted with command against the Mediterranean pirates, annihilated them. 66, was appointed to succeed Lucullus against Mithridates and kept busy in the East until 62, when he returned to Italy. 61, entered Rome and received a triumph. Entered into the first Triumvirate with Caesar and Crassus. Maried Caesar's daughter Julia. When Caesar went to Gaul (58) Pompey's power and popularity waned. 55, Consul with Crassus. After the death of Julia (54) Pompey and Caesar gradually became enemies. Civil War followed. 48, Pompey was defeated at Pharsalus, fled to Egypt and was there killed.

Gnaeus Pompēius, stirpis senātōriae, bellō cīvīlī sē et patrem cōnsiliō servāvit. Cum enim Pompēī pater exercituī suō ob avāritiam esset invīsus, factā in eum cōnspīrātiōne Terentius quīdam, Gnaeī Pompēī fīliī contubernālis, hunc occīdendum suscēpit, dum aliī tabernāculum patris incenderent. Deinde cubiculum ingressus clam subdūxit sē tentōriō et fīrmam patrī circumdedit custōdiam. Terentius tum dēstrictō ēnse ad lectum Pompēī accessit multīsque ictibus strāgula percussit. Ortā mox sēditiōne Pompēius sē in media cōniēcit āgmina, mīlitēsque tumultuantēs precibus et lacrimīs plācāvit āc ducī reconciliāvit.

Eōdem bellō Pompēius partēs Sullae secūtus ita sē gessit, ut ab eō māximē dīligerētur. Annōs trēs et vīgintī nātus, ut Sullae auxiliō venīret, paternī exercitūs reliquiās collēgit, statimque dux perītus exstitit. 30. Carbōne, Cn. Papirius Carbo, one of the leaders of the Marian Party. He waged war against Sulla in 82, but was compelled to flee to Sicily where he was put to death by Pompeius at Lilybaeum.

mortem dēprecābātur, ad supplicium dūcī iussit. Longē moderātior fuit Pompēius ergā Sthenium, Siciliae cūiusdam cīvitātis prīncipem. Cum enim in eam cīvitātem animadvertere dēcrēvisset, quae sibi adversāta fuisset, inīquē eum factūrum Sthenius exclāmāvit, sī ob unīus culpam omnēs pūnīret. Interrogantī Pompēiō, quisnam ille ūnus esset: "Ego," inquit Sthneius, "quī cīvēs meōs ad id indūxī." Tam līberā vōce dēlectātus Pompēius omnibus et Sthneiō ipsī pepercit.

Trānsgressus inde in Āfricam Iarbam, Numidiae rēgem, quī Mariī partibus favēbat, bellō persecūtus intrā diēs quadrāgintā oppressit et Āfricam subēgit adulēscēns quattuor et vīgintī annōrum. Deinde cum litterae eī ā Sullā redditae essent, quibus exercitū dīmissō cum ūnā legiōne successōrem exspectāre iubēbātur, Pompēius, quanquam aegrē id ferēbat, tamen pāruit et Rōmam revertit. Revertentī incrēdibilis hominum multitūdō obviam īvit; Sulla quoque laetus eum excēpit et Māgnī cōgnōmine cōnsalūtāvit. Nihilō minus Pompēiō triumphum petentī restitit: neque vērō eā rē ā prōpositō dēterritus est Pompēius aususque dīcere plūrēs adōrāre sōlem orientem quam occidentem: quō dictō innuēbat, Sullae potentiam minuī, suam crēscere. Eā vōce audītā Sulla, cōnfīdentiā adulēscentis perculsus, "Triumphet! triumphet!" exclāmāvit.

Metellō iam senī et bellum in Hispāniā sēgnius gerentī collēga datus Pompēius adversus Sertōrium variō ēventū dīmicāvit. Māximum ibi in proeliō quōdam perīculum subiit: cum enim vir vāstā corporis māgnitūdine impetum in

At praeter spem ēvāsit: barbarī enim equum ēius aurō phalerīsque eximiīs īnstrūctum cēperant. Dum igitur praedam inter sē altercantēs partiuntur, Pompēius eōrum manūs effūgit. ficō cīvium testimōniō victus Catulus ē cōntiōne discessit. Tigrānī deinde, Armeniae rēgī, quī Mithridātis partēs secūtus erat, Pompēius bellum intulit eumque ad dēditiōnem compulit. Quī cum prōcubuisset ad genua Pompēī, eum ērēxit, et benīgnīs verbīs recreātum diadēma, quod abiēcerat, capitī repōnere iussit, aequē pulchrum esse iūdicāns, et vincere rēgēs et facere. Inde in Iūdaeam profectus Rōmānōrum prīmus Iūdaeōs domuit, Hierosolyma, caput gentis, cēpit, templumque iūre victōriae ingressus est. Rēbus Asiae compositīs in Ītaliam versus ad urbem vēnit, nōn, ut plērīque timuerant, armātus, sed dīmīssō exercitū, et tertium triumphum bīduō dūxit. Īnsīgnis fuit multīs novīs iniūsitātīsque ōrnāmentīs hīc triumphus; sed nihil illūstrius vīsum, quam quod tribus triumphīs trēs orbis partēs dēvictae causam praebuerant: Pompēius enim, quod anteā contigerat nēminī, prīmum ex Āfricā, iterum ex Eurōpā, tertiō ex Asiā triumphāvit, fēlīx opīniōne hominum futūrus, sī, quem glōriae, eundem vītae fīnem habuisset neque adversam fōrtūnam esset expertus iam senex.

Posteriōre enim tempore ortā inter Pompēium et Caesarem gravī dissēnsiōne, quod hīc superiōrem, ille parem ferre nōn posset, bellum cīvīle exārsit. Caesar īnfestō exercitū in Ītaliam vēnit. XXXI. GAIUS IULIUS CAESAR.

Gaius Julius Caesar, of a patrician family. Born 100. 83, married Cornelia daughter of L. Cinna. 82, left Italy during Sulla's proscriptions, and served with the army in Asia till 78. Then returned to Rome. 76, went to Rhodes to study under Milo, and shortly after returned to Rome. 68, Quaestor. 65, Aedile, spent enormous sums on public games and buildings. 63, opposed the execution of the Catilinarian conspirators. Elected Pontifex Maximus. 62, Praetor. 61, Propraetor in Spain, gained victories over the Lusitanians. 59, Consul. He had previously formed the first Triumvirate with Pompey and Crassus. At the close of his consulship he spent nine years in the subjugation of Transalpine Gaul. During this time sprang up the enmity between himself and Pompey. He asked permission to sue for the Consulship while still in command of his army. The senate refused and ordered him to give up his command. 49, crossed the Rubicon and soon became master of Italy. Went to Spain and crushed Pompey's adherents there. Returned to Rome, appointed Dictator, resigned the office after eleven days. 48, crossed to Greece, where Pompey had fled; he was at first unsuccessful and withdrew to Pharsalus in Thessaly. Here he completely defeated Pompey, Aug. 9. Pursued Pompey to Egypt. Settled a dispute in regard to the throne of Egypt. Went to Asia Minor and subdued a revolt. 47, returned to Rome and was appointed Consul for the next year, having previously been appointed Dictator. 46, crossed to Africa and defeated the Pompeian army under Scipio and Cato at Thapsus, April 6. Returning to Rome he was made perpetual Dictator. Passed beneficent laws and planned many vast undertakings. 45, crushed an army in Spain commanded by the two sons of Pompey. 44, assassinated March 15.

XXXII. MARCUS CATO UTICENSIS.

Marcus Cato Uticensis, of a plebeian gens. Born, 95. A man of stern and unyielding character and rigid morality. 67, Tribune of the soldiers in Macedonia. 65, Quaestor. 63, Tribune of the plebs, strongly favored execution of the Catilinarian conspirators. 58, Governor of Cyprus. 56, returned and bitterly opposed the triumvirs. 49, Propraetor in Sicily. 48, was defeated at Thapsus in Africa, and committed suicide.

Mārcus Catō iam puer invīctum animī rōbur ostendit. Nam cum in domō M. Drūsī avunculī suī ēducārētur et ad eum, tribūnum plēbis, Latīnī dē cīvitāte impetrandā convēnissent, ā Quīntō Popediō, Latīnōrum prīncipe, Drūsī hospite, rogātus, ut sociōs apud avunculum adiuvāret, cōnstantī vultū nōn factūrum sē respondit. Iterum deinde āc saepius interpellātus in prōpositō perstitit. Tunc Popedius in excelsam aedium partem levātum abiectūrum inde sē, nisi precibus obtemperāret, minātus est: neque hāc rē ab inceptō movērī potuit. Tunc Popedius exclāmāsse fertur: "Grātulēmur nōbīs, Latīnī et sociī, hunc esse tam parvum; quō senātōre nē spērāre quidem nōbīs cīvitātem licuisset."

Īdem cum salūtandī grātiā praetextātus ad Sullam vēnisset et capita prōscrīptōrum in ātrium allāta vīdisset, atrōcitāte reī commōtus paedagōgum suum interrogāvit, quāpropter nēmō invenīrētur, quī tam crūdēlem tyrannum occīderet; cumque is, nōn voluntātem hominibus, sed facultātem deesse, quod salūs ēius māgnō mīlitum praesidiō custōdīrētur, respondisset, ut ferrum sibi daret, obsecrāvit, affīrmāns.

15. paedagōgum, a slave of the highest rank whose duties were to oversee the education of his master's son, to accompany him in his walks and to conduct him to and from school.

perfacile sē eum interfectūrum, quod in lectō illīus cōnsīdere solēret. Paedagōgus et animum Catōnis āgnōvit et prōpositum exhorruit eumque posteā ad Sullam excussum semper addūxit. Eōdem igitur animō fuit Catō, quō alius puer, quī tunc pūblicam scholam cum Faustō, Sullae fīliō, frequentābat et Faustum prōscrīptiōnem paternam laudantem ipsumque, cum per aetātem potuisset, idem factūrum minitantem colaphō percussit.

Īnsīgnis fuit et ad imitandum prōpōnenda Catōnis ergā frātrem benevolentia. Cum enim interrogātus esset, quem omnium māximē dīligeret, respondit, "Frātrem." Iterum interrogātus, quem secundum māximē dīligeret, iterum, "Frātrem" respondit. Quaerentī tertiō idem respōnsum dedit, dōnec ille ā percontandō dēsisteret. Crēvit cum aetāte ille Catōnis in frātrem amor: ab ēius latere nōn discēdēbat; eī omnibus in rēbus mōrem gerēbat. Annōs nātus vīgintī sine frātre nunquam cēnāverat, nunquam iter suscēperat, nunquam in forum prōdierat. Cum frāter, quī erat tribūnus mīlitum, ad bellum profectus esset, nē eum dēsereret, voluntāria stīpendia fēcit.

Dētēctā Catilīnae coniūrātiōne comprehēnsīsque in urbe ēius sociīs cum senātus habērētur dē eōrum poenā aliīque suādērent, ut per mūnicipia coniūrātī custōdīrentur, Catō, admodum adulēscēns, paene inter ūltimōs sententiam interrogātus, tantā vī animī atque ingeniī invēctus est in coniūrātiōnem, ōrātiōnem omnium, quī lēnitātem suādērent, suspectam fēcit, sīc impendentia ex ruīnīs incendiīsque urbis et commūtātiōne statūs pūblicī perīcula exposuit, ita Cicerōnis cōnsulis virtūtem amplificāvit, ut ūniversus senātus in ēius sententiam trānsīret animadvertendumque in coniūrātōs cēnsēret māiorque pars ōrdinis ēius Catōnem prōsequerētur domum.

Cum Caesar cōnsul lēgem agrāriam tulisset, Catō sōlus cēterīs exterritīs huīc lēgī obstitit. Īrātus Caesar Catōnem extrahī cūriā et in vincula rapī iussit: at ille nihil dē lībertāte linguae remīsit, sed in ipsā ad carcerem viā dē lēge disputābat cīvēsque commonēbat, ut tālia mōlientibus adversārentur. Catōnem sequēbantur maestī patrēs; quōrum ūnus obiūrgātus ā Caesare, quod, nōndum mīssō senātū, discēderet: "Mālō," inquit, "esse cum Catōne in carcere, quam tēcum in cūriā." Exspectābat Caesar, dum ad precēs Catō sēsē dēmitteret: quod ubi frūstrā ā sē spērārī intellēxit, pudōre victus ūnum ē tribūnīs mīsit, quī Catōnem dīmitteret.

Catō quaestor in īnsulam Cyprum mīssus ad colligendam Ptolemaeī rēgis pecūniam, ā quō populus Rōmānus hērēs īnstitūtus erat, integerrimā fidē eam rem administrāvit et pecūniam longē spērātā māiōrem Rōmam rettulit. Septem ferē mīlia talentūm nāvibus imposuit atque, ut naufragiī perīcula vītāret, singulīs vāsīs, quibus inclūsa erat pecūnia, corticem sūberis longō fūniculō alligāvit, ut, sī fōrte mersum nāvigium esset, locum āmīssae pecūniae cortex supernatāns indicāret. Catōnī, cum per Tiberim subīret nāvibus, ūnā cum cōnsulibus āc senātū tōta fermē cīvitās obviam effūsa est nec erat rēs triumphō absimilis. Āctae sunt Catōnī ā

XXXIII. MARCUS TULLIUS CICERO.

Marcus Tullius Cicero, of a plebeian family. Born 106 near Arpinum. Educated at Rome under the best teachers. 79, spent some time in Greece to avoid Sulla, whom he had angered. 78, studied at Rhodes under Molo. 77, returned to Rome. 75, Quaestor in Sicily. 69, Aedile. 66, Praetor. 63, Consul, supressed Catiline's conspiracy. 58, exiled but soon recalled. 49–45, sided with Pompey in the Civil War, but after Caesar's success became reconciled with him. 43, assassinated in the proscriptions of the second Triumvirate. Cicero's title to fame lies in his writings, consisting of orations, rhetorical and Philosophical works, and letters.

Mārcus Tullius Cicerō, equestrī genere, Arpīnī, quod est Volscōrum oppidum, nātus est. Ex ēius avīs ūnus verrūcam in extrēmō nāsō sitam habuit, ciceris grānō similem; inde cōgnōmen Cicerōnis gentī inditum. Suādentibus quibusdam, ut id nōmen mūtāret: "Dabō operam," inquit, "ut istud cōgnōmen nōbilissimōrum nōminum splendōrem vincat." Cum ā patre Rōmam mīssus, ubi celeberrimōrum magistrōrum scholīs interesset, eās artēs disceret, quibus aetās puerīlis ad hūmānitātem solet īnfōrmārī, tantō successū tantāque cum praeceptōrum tum cēterōrum discipulōrum admīrātiōne id fēcit, ut, cum fama de Cicerōnis ingeniō et doctrīnā ad aliōs mānāsset, nōn paucī, quī ēius videndī et audiendī grātiā scholās adīrent, repertī esse dīcantur.

Cum nūllā rē magis ad summōs in rēpūblicā honōrēs viam mūnīrī posse intellegeret quam arte dīcendī et ēloquentiā, tōtō animō in ēius studium incubuit; in quō quidem ita versātus est, ut nōn sōlum eōs, quī in forō et iūdiciīs causās

Nam cum Rōscium quendam parricīdiī accūsātum, ob Chrȳsogonī, Sullae lībertī, quī in ēius adversāriīs erat, potentiam nēmō dēfendere audēret, tantā ēloquentiae vī eum dēfendit Cicerō, ut iam tum in arte dīcendī nūllus eī pār esse vidērētur. proavum, M. Sergium, incrēdibilī fortitūdine fuisse Plīnius refert. Stīpendia is fēcit secundō bellō Pūnicō. Secundō stīpendiō dextram manum perdidit: stīpendiīs duōbus ter et vīciēs vulnerātus est: ob id neutrā manū, neutrō pede satis ūtilis, plūrimīsque posteā stīpendiīs dēbilis mīles erat. Bis ab Hannibale captus, bis vinculōrum ēius profugus, vīgintī mēnsibus nūllō nōn diē in catēnīs aut compedibus custōdītus. Sinistrā manū sōlā quater pūgnāvit, duōbus equīs īnsidente eō suffossīs. Dextram sibi ferream fēcit eāque religātā proeliātus Cremōnam obsidiōne exēmit, Placentiam tūtātus est, duodēna castra hostium in Galliā cēpit. Cēterī profectō, Plīnius addit, vīctōrēs hominum fuēre, Sergius vīcit etiam fōrtūnam.

Singulārem hūius virī glōriam foedē dehonestāvit prone- pōtis scelus. Catilīna longē ā suīs inter hostium cadāvera repertus est: pulcherrimā morte, sī prō patriā sīc concidisset! Senātus populusque Rōmānus Cicerōnem patrem patriae appellāvit. buam enim vōbīs, quae sunt vestra. Nec vērō possum tantum dare ingeniō meō, ut dīspēxerim sponte meā in tempestāte illā turbulentissimā reīpūblicae, quid esset optimum factū."

Paucīs post annīs Cicerōnī diem dīxit Clōdius tribūnus plēbis, quod cīvēs Rōmānōs indictā causā necāvisset. Senātus maestus, tanquam in pūblicō lūctū, veste mūtātā prō eō dēprecābātur. Cicerō, cum posset armīs salūtem suam dēfendere, māluit urbe cēdere, quam suā causā caedem fierī. Proficīscentem omnēs bonī flentēs prōsecūtī sunt. Dein Clōdius ēdictum prōposuit, ut Mārcō Tulliō īgnī et aquā interdīcerētur: illīus domum et vīllās incendit. Sed vīs illa nōn diūturna fuit: mox enim tōtus ferē populus Rōmānus ingentī dēsīderiō Cicerōnis reditum flāgitāre coepit et māximō omnium ōrdinum studiō Cicerō in patriam revocātus est. Nihil per tōtam vītam Cicerōnī itinere, quō in patriam rediit, accidit iūcundius. Obviam eī redeuntī ab ūniversīs itum est: domus ēius pūblicā pecūniā restitūta est.

XXXV. OCTAVIANUS CAESAR AUGUSTUS.

Gaius Julius Caesar Octavianus Augustus, first Roman emperor. Born, 63. Educated with great care, partly under supervision of his great-uncle Julius Caesar. 45, sent to Illyricum by Caesar, for training in military affairs and to prosecute his studies. 44, learned of Caesar's murder and hurried to Italy. Caesar had adopted him and made him his heir and successor. Defeated Antony, his rival for power, demanded and received the consulship from the senate. Became reconciled with Antony, and the two with Lepidus formed the second Triumvirate. 42, with Antony defeated Brutus and Cassius at Philippi. The triumvirs divided the Roman world, Octavianus taking the West, Antony the East, and Lepidus Africa. They also instituted a general proscription of their respective enemies. Antony maried Octavia sister of Octavianus, but repudiated her on becoming enamored of Cleopatra queen of Egypt. Enmity sprang up between Octavianus and Antony and the latter together with Cleopatra was defeated at Actium in 31. Lepidus had been stripped of his power in 36. Octavianus thus became sole master of the Roman dominions. 27, received the title of Augustus. 14 A. D., died at Nola. His reign was one of the most splendid periods in the annals of Rome.

Octāviānus, Iūliae, Gāiī Caesaris sorōris, nepōs, quartum annum agēns patrem āmīsit. Ab avunculō adoptātus profectum eum in Hispāniās adversus Gnaeī Pompēī līberōs secūtus est. 54. Seneca; a Roman philosopher, tutor of the young Nero and afterward one of his chief advisers. He was condemned to death by Nero.

68. dīvō Iūliō, Julius Caesar, to whom, as to most of the other emperors, divine honors were paid after death.

Abaliēnātus posteā est ab Antōniō, quod is repudiātā Octāviā sorōre Cleopatram, Aegyptī rēgīnam, dūxisset ūxōrem: quae quidem mulier cum Antōniō lūxū et dēliciīs certābat. 105. Sextīlis; the month of August, which was called Sextilis, the sixth, because originally the Roman year began with March.

ēdictō vetuit. Immō dē restituendā rēpūblicā nōn semel cōgitāvit, sed reputāns, et sē prīvātum nōn sine perīculō fore, et rempūblicam plūrium arbitriō commīssum īrī, summam retinuit potestātem, id vērō studuit, nē quem novī statūs paenitēret. Bene dē iīs etiam, quōs adversāriōs expertus erat, et sentiēbat et loquēbātur. Legentem aliquandō ūnum ē nepōtibus invēnit; cumque puer territus volūmen Cicerōnis, quod manū tenēbat, veste tegeret, Augustus librum cēpit eōque statim redditō: "Hīc vir," inquit, "fīlī mī, doctus fuit et patriae amāns."

Pedibus saepe per urbem incēdēbat summāque cōmitāte adeuntēs excipiēbat. Convēnit aliquandō eum veterānus mīles, quī vocātus in iūs perīclitābātur, rogāvitque, ut sibi adesset: statim Augustus ūnum ē comitātū suō ēlēgit advocātum, quī lītigātōrem commendāret. Nihil exasperātus Caesar satis dūxit, iubēre illum dīvidere dōnātīvum cum contubernālī. Salūtātus similiter ā psittacō emī eum iussit.

Exemplum sūtōrem pauperem sollicitāvit, ut corvum īnstitueret ad parem salūtātiōnem. Quī impendiō exhaustus saepe ad avem nōn respondentem dīcere solēbat: "Opera et impēnsa periit!" Aliquandō tamen corvus coepit dīcere dictam salūtātiōnem. Hāc audītā, dum trānsit, Augustus respondit: "Satis domī tālium salūtātōrum habeō." VOCABULARY.

EXERCISES FOR TRANSLATION INTO LATIN.

I. ROMANI IMPERII EXORDIUM.

1. Procă, father of Numitor and Amulius, left his kingdom to his older son, Numitor. 2. Amulius gained sole control of the kingdom by driving out his brother. 3. That Numitor might be deprived of posterity, Rhea Silvia, his daughter, was made a priestess of Vesta. She nevertheless gave birth to twins. 4. When Amulius found this out he put her in chains, placed the infants in a small boat and threw them into the Tiber. 5. By the subsidence of the water the children were left on dry land. 6. According to tradition, a wolf nursed the infants. 7. Faustulus, the king's shepherd, noticed the wolf quite often. 8. He took the little boys to his hut and gave them to his wife to be brought up. 9. After growing up they increased their strength by friendly contests and hunting expeditions. 10. They began to keep robbers from plundering the flocks. 11. The robbers lay in ambush for the boys. 12. After Remus had been captured and taken to the king, he was accused of trespassing habitually on Numitor's fields. 13. Faustulus had been compelled by necessity to tell Romulus who his grandfather was. 14. The king gave Remus into his brother's charge for punishment. 15. Upon learning of this Romulus hastened to Alba with armed shepherds. 16. Remus very closely resembled his mother in features. 17. While held in suspense by this fact Numitor considered his age and his bearing, which was not at all like that of a slave. 18. Numitor scans Remus's face and comes near recognizing his grandson. 19. Upon the death of Amulius Numitor is restored to his kingdom by Romulus. 20. Romulus and Remus decided to found and rule a new city. 21. When a dispute arose as to which should name the city, they consulted the auspices. 22. Remus first saw six vultures, but Romulus, who afterward saw twelve, became victor and named the city Rome. 23. They thought a wall would be sufficient to protect the city. 24. Remus laughing at its narrowness leaped over it and was killed by his angry brother.

II. ROMULUS.

1. Rome was the semblance of a city rather than a city. 2. Since the city lacked inhabitants, Romulus made a place of refuge of a grove which was near by. 3. He ordered envoys to be sent among the neighboring peoples. 4. They were sent to seek an alliance and the right of intermarriage for the new people. 5. The neighbors everywhere refused to hear the embassy. 6. Romulus concealed his vexation and ordered an announcement of games to be made to the neighbors. 7. A large number of women and children assembled with the men to witness the spectacle. 8. When the attention of the Sabines was directed to the spectacle, at a given signal their daughters were seized and carried off. 9. The seizure of the maidens was the cause of immediate war. 10. The Sabines at once took up arms against the Romans and advanced upon the city. 11. It happened that Tarpeia, whose father had command of the Roman citadel, had gone outside the walls to get water. 12. Titus Tatius, the Sabine leader, said to her, "Lead my army to the Capitol and you shall have your choice of a reward." 13. The Sabines promised Tarpeia the rings and bracelets which they wore on their left arms. 14. After conducting them to the citadel, by order of Tatius she was overwhelmed by their shields. 15. At the first attack the Romans were thrown into confusion by the fall of Hostilius. 16. The Sabines cried out that they had conquered their treacherous hosts. 17. Romulus vowed a temple to Jupiter if the army should make a stand. 18. Romulus chose a hundred of the older men as senators. 19. An assembly was held on the campus for the purpose of reviewing the army. 20. Julius said, "Romulus has appeared to me in majestic form." 21. "He warns you to refrain from quarrels." 22. "You will become rulers of the whole world."

III. NUMA POMPILIUS.

1. Numa Pompilius, successor to Romulus, was a man renowned for justice and religion. 2. He is said to have been summoned from Cures, a Sabine town. 3. The mighty thunderbolts which are about to fall upon the city must be averted by sacred rites. 4. Jupiter promises Numa to give the Roman people pledges of power. 5. We will wait to see what happens. 6. Numa enacted many beneficial laws, so that he won great authority for his institutions. 7. Numa pretends to have conferences with Egeria. 8. He says he will regulate all his acts according to her advice. 9. In the middle of the grove was a fountain. 10. Although Numa did not build up the state by war, he benefited it no less than Romulus. 11. All were continually restrained no less by their word and pledge than by the fear of punishment. 12. After a rule of forty-three years Numa died of disease and was buried on mount Janiculum.

IV. TULLUS HOSTILIUS.

1. Tullus Hostilius, third king of the Romans, was even more spirited than Romulus. 2. During his reign a war arose between the Albans and Romans. 3. The leaders decided to have the Horatii and the Curiatii fight, each for his own country. 4. They arrange for the contest to be settled by swords. 5. The terms were, that dominion should follow the victory. 6. When at a given signal the young men rushed together and engaged in combat, the spectators were seized with horror. 7. The unwounded Roman, thinking he would be no match for three, retreated a short distance. 8. One of the Curiatii was close upon him, when Horatius turned and killed him before the others could help their brother. 9. After the second had been killed, one on each side remained, unequal both in hope and strength. 10. Horatius struck down Curiatius, since the latter could hardly carry his arms. He was escorted home from the place where the contest had been fought. 11. Horatius was met by his sister; she began to weep when she saw the cloak of one of the Curiatii, to whom she had been betrothed. 12. Drawing his sword, Horatius stabbed his sister. 13. He was condemned for his violent deed, but appealed to the people. 14. The people were moved by the laments of his father. 15. They did not make childless a man whom they had seen but a short time before blessed with an illustrious progeny. 16. Mettius coming to congratulate Tullus because of his victory was put to death. 17. To furnish Rome with more inhabitants Tullus added the Caelian mount to the city. 18. He thought the young men would be more healthy in military service than if they remained at home.

V. ANCUS MARCIUS.

1. After Tullus's death Ancus, who was like his grandfather, was chosen king. 2. Before raising an army Ancus sent an envoy to demand satisfaction from the Latins. 3. If no trust is placed in the messenger's words and satisfaction is not rendered, he declares war on the enemy. 4. If satisfaction is not rendered, let a spear be hurled into the territory of the enemy. 5. After building a prison in the middle of the city, Ancus surrounds the city with new walls. 6. A bridge over the Tiber served to connect mount Janiculum with the city.

VI. LUCIUS TARQUINIUS PRISCUS.

1. During the reign of Ancus, Lucius Tarquinius entered the city of Rome. 2. He came from Tarquinii, a city in Etruria. 3. An eagle took Tarquinius's hat from his head as he entered the city. 4. Tarquinius, who was skilled in the knowledge of divine portents, began to hope for great things. 5. His wife bade him secure a home in the city and win the friendship of king Ancus. 6. Tarquinius is left as tutor for Ancus's children, and after usurping the kingdom manages it as if gained by right. 7. Having surrounded the city with a new wall of stone, Tarquinius asked an augur whether he could change the number of centuries. 8. The augur's reply is, that this cannot be done without consulting the omens. 9. Tarquinius becomes angry and asks if he can accomplish what he has in mind. 10. Tarquinius said he was considering whether he could cut a whetstone with a razor. 11. Tarquinius had a son thirteen years old, to whom he presented the toga praetexta. 12. The two sons of Ancus were indignant that they had been robbed of their father's kingdom. 13. They form a plot to take the king's life and choose two shepherds to do the deed. 14. These shepherds were chosen because they were very fierce. 15. While the king gave his whole attention to one of the shepherds, the other raised his axe and struck the king's head.

VII. SERVIUS TULLIUS.

1. Servius Tullius, son of a captive woman of high rank, was brought up as if a son of Tarquinius. 2. While the boy was sleeping, a portent happened, wonderful in its outcome. 3. Tanaquil will persuade her husband to engage in battle against the Sabines. 4. Since the soldiers fight with too little spirit, Servius seizes the standard and hurls it into the midst of the enemy. 5. The soldiers ought to recover the standard. 6. Tarquinius made Servius his son-in-law. 7. Although the king's wound is severe, it is not fatal. 8. While Tarquinius is getting well he begs you to obey Servius Tullius. 9. The priest shrewdly replies that that people will gain the supremacy whose citizen sacrifices the bull to Diana. 10. While the Latin washed his hands the priest sacrificed the bull. 11. Servius Tullius saw that one of his daughters had a spirited disposition, and had her marry Tarquinius's son of mild disposition. 12. Tullia rides into the forum in a carriage, calls her husband from the senate-house, and is the first to hail him as king.

VIII. TARQUINIUS SUPERBUS.

1. Sextus was vexed because his father was unable to take the city of Gabii. 2. His father sent him to find out who had great influence with the people of Gabii. 3. At last he so allures them by flattery that he is chosen leader. 4. Sextus will understand his father's meaning when he learns of his silence and his act. 5. Tarquinius Collatinus was the king's nephew. 6. He was dining at the house of Sextus Tarquinius. They happened to mention their wives. 7. Upon finding the daughters-in-law of the king in the enjoyment of a banquet they went on to Collatia. 8. Lucretia had a knife hid, with which she killed herself. 9. The Romans shut the gates against Tarquinius when he returned to Rome. 10. The king laughed as if the old woman had demanded too great a price. 11. The king asks her whether she will burn three more books. 12. Since the old woman was undoubtedly deranged, the king knew that he must pay no attention to her persistency. 13. She again made the very same demand, that he should buy the remaining books for no less than the price she had set upon all. 14. The old woman will leave Tarquin and never be seen anywhere afterwards. 15. It appears that after the books were placed in the shrine they were given the name of Sibylline. 16. Whenever the Quindecimvirs consult the books, they ask the advice of the gods.

IX. IUNIUS BRUTUS.

1. Junius, nephew of Tarquinius Superbus, feigned simplicity and received the name Brutus. 2. Brutus fills a staff of elder with gold and takes it as a gift to the god. 3. Tarquinius's sons consult Apollo as to which one of them is destined to hold the supremacy at Rome. 4. Brutus fell and kissed the earth, thinking her the common mother of mankind. 5. The envoys confer with the young Tarquins to see who are going to restore the royal family. 6. The reply is made that those whom they admit to a share in their plan will restore the royal family. 7. Not only did Brutus go out to meet Aruns, but he also eagerly advanced to the contest. 8. Aruns, who had command of the cavalry, putting spurs to his horse, advanced and fell pierced by a spear.

X. HORATIUS COCLES.

1. Never before had the Etruscans come to Rome with a hostile army. 2. They came near restoring the Tarquins, and would have succeeded had not Horatius taken his stand at one end of the bridge. 3. By the very boldness of his act he astonished the enemy. 4. Single-handed he withstood the enemy's line until he could leap into the Tiber. 5. Although the bridge had been cut down behind him, he reached his comrades in safety by swimming. 6. The people said they would give him as much land as he could plough around in a day.

XI. MUCIUS SCAEVOLA.

1. Mucius Scaevola was a man possessed of the characteristic Roman firmness. 2. He received permission to go over to the enemy's camp because he promised to kill Porsena. 3. Upon being arrested and taken before the king he said, "Three hundred other young men like myself have formed a conspiracy against king Porsena." 4. The king orders him to be removed from the altar. 5. Porsena will receive hostages and put an end to the war. 6. To show Mucius honor, the state orders a statue to be erected.

XII. MENENIUS AGRIPPA.

1. The plebs seceded from the patricians, giving as a reason their unwillingness to endure both military service and taxes. 2. Menenius said that the senate and plebs would perish through discord, but be strong through harmony. 3. We will elect tribunes to protect our liberties from the arrogant nobles. 4. Throughout his life Menenius was as much a favorite with the plebs as with the patricians. 6. The story which he told taught the plebs how unnecessary discord is to those who desire liberty.

XIII. GAIUS MARCIUS CORIOLANUS.

1. Gaius Marcius was of patrician descent, and engaged in military service when a mere boy. 2. I will keep no other object before me than to please my mother. 3. Whenever he was presented with a crown he thought himself happy. 4. The consul said, "I will give Coriolanus as much silver as he can carry, if he captures Corioli." 5. Coriolanus has corn brought from Sicily. 6. The corn was given the people at a high price to induce them to till their fields. 7. The Volscians, who were hostile to the Romans, made Coriolanus their commander. 8. He had fled to them to seek a hiding-place. 9. Since the men cannot defend the city by force of arms, we will defend her by our prayers and entreaties. 10. By enlisting the prayers of Veturia the Romans overcame Coriolanus. 11. Having broken camp Coriolanus withdrew from the Roman territory with his army.

XIV. QUINCTIUS CINCINNATUS.

1. Word was brought that the Aequians had Minucius and his army blockaded. 2. When the Romans had decided to appoint a dictator, envoys were sent to Quinctius. 3. They found him tilling a field of four acres across the Tiber. 4. They said, "The fear of the people is as great as if the enemy were besieging the city." 5. After Quinctius had been hailed as dictator he went on to Rome, preceded by his lictors. 6. Next day he freed Minucius from the blockade, conquered the enemy, sent them under the yoke, and entered Rome in triumph. 7. Although he had received the dictatorship for six months, he resigned on the sixteenth day. 8. His exploits were as great as if he had been dictator six months.

XV. MARCUS FURIUS CAMILLUS.

1. A school-master led a large number of boys of high rank into the Roman camp. 2. There is no doubt that Camillus despised the treachery of the betrayer. 3. Had the betrayal of the boys succeeded, the Faliscans would have surrendered to the Romans. 4. Boys are spared even upon the capture of cities. 5. Men like you attack camps, although uninjured by their enemies. 6. Camillus gave the master over to the boys to be stripped and beaten. 7. Soldiers were sent to lead the boys from the camp to Falerii. 8. The Faliscans were bound by oath to open the gates of their city. 9. We will not depart until we accomplish the overthrow of the city. 10. The Romans were charged with inflicting injury on Camillus unjustly. 11. The Roman army will be defeated at the Allia July 17th. 12. We will go back to our homes, so that, when the enemy enter our houses, we may die with the dignity that becomes us. 13. One of the old men brought down his ivory staff on the head of a Gaul who ventured to stand near him. 14. The noise of the geese was so great that Manlius was aroused. 15. While he struck and pushed back the first Gaul, the other soldiers seized their arms. 16. It will take a thousand pounds to induce us to give up the siege. 17. Manlius will be hurled from the Tarpeian rock on the charge of freeing men imprisoned for debt.

XVI. TITUS MANLIUS TORQUATUS.

1. Although Manlius's plan was that of an uncultivated mind, it was nevertheless praiseworthy for the filial affection it showed. 2. The son, doubtless because he heard that a day had been set for his father's trial, went to the city. 3. He threatened to kill the tribune unless he gave up the prosecution. 4. The people make Manlius tribune of the soldiers because it is a great honor to him. 5. A Gaul of uncommon size of body advanced to the bridge which lay between the two armies. 6. Let the outcome of our contest show which is the braver. 7. I should never fight without your orders if I were absolutely sure of victory. 8. If you are sprung from the family which hurled the Gallic soldiers from the Tarpeian rock, you are a brave man. 9. When he had girded on his Spanish sword, he seized his shield. 10. Manlius removed the twisted chain from the Gaul whom he had felled to the ground. 11. Having placed it around his own neck he started forward to meet the Romans. 12. Manlius proclaimed that no one should engage in combat with an enemy outside of the ranks. 13. His son forgot his father's authority and rushed into combat with a Latin horseman. 14. The soldier with whom he had gone from the camp returned, when Piso at once ordered them both to be put to death. 15. He included the centurion, since he had brought back the condemned soldier and had failed to obey his commander's order. 16. It is characteristic of the Manlian gens to play the part of a scrupulous judge. 17. We will not make any decision in regard to the matter until you start an investigation. 18. You must investigate your son's case.

XVII. PUBLIUS DECIUS.

1. In the consulship of Valerius Maximus and Cornelius Cossus a Roman army was blockaded in a narrow pass on Mt. Gaurus. 2. Although the hill on which Decius and his army were encamped overhung the camp of the enemy, they escaped in safety through the midst of the enemy's guards. 3. It has been revealed to us in a dream that he whose wing wavers in line of battle, will devote himself to the Manes. 4. The civic wreath is presented to those who save fellow citizens in battle. 5. The consuls say that those whose leader falls in battle will conquer.

XVIII. PUBLIUS VALERIUS LAEVINUS ET PYRRHUS.

1. The Tarentines will demand aid from Pyrrhus against the Romans. 2. Pyrrhus orders his soldiers to engage in battle and not to retreat. 3. When Pyrrhus saw that the Romans' wounds were in front, he said, "If I had had such soldiers I could have become master of the world." 4. If I hasten to Rome by forced marches, I shall devastate everything with sword and fire. 5. I have the same fortune against the Romans that Hercules had against the hydra. 6. Men will not be wanting to avert the danger by a confession of guilt. 7. We will ask whether they would have said more had the wine not given out. 8. We should have made a treaty of peace if the terms had been favorable. 9. I intend to send an envoy to Rome. 10. It will not be a difficult matter to take the city by force of arms. 11. What was there to hinder Cineas from flattering the king's ambition? 12. After I have conquered the Romans I propose to enjoy that ease you talk of. 13. You cannot have peace until you have departed from Italy. 14. They will not be restored to their former standing until they have slain two enemies each and brought back the spoils.

XIX. GAIUS FABRICIUS.

1. Gaius Fabricius was among the legates to whom Pyrrhus offered gifts of gold. 2. Pyrrhus tried to induce him to win the Romans over. 3. Pyrrhus was told what the physician had promised against his life.

4. I hear Cineas saying that all our acts are to be measured by the standard of pleasure. 5. The enemy cannot be persuaded of this. 6. When the enemy give themselves up to pleasure, they will be more easily conquered. 7. Fabricius is able to control his desires, for all his silver plate consists of a salt-cellar and a small dish. 8. We lack nothing if we control our desires. 9. Would that Rufinus had a contempt for money, that he might be a better commander. 10. Fabricius used his influence to have Rufinus removed from the senate. 11. It is no wonder that Rufinus did not express any thanks to Fabricius.

XX. MANIUS CURIUS.

1. Manius Curius will be accused of taking plunder to his own home. 2. I am accustomed to use this dish for sacrifices. 3. It is not the possession of gold that seems to me a source of fame, but control over those who have gold. 4. Any man who is not content with what is given him is a dangerous citizen. 5. The state has no need of a citizen who does not know how to obey. 6. The tribunes will not be of any assistance to the young man when he appeals to them. 7. It has become a custom for soldiers to be sold into slavery if they refuse military service when a levy has been duly made. 8. The Romans decided to elect Manius Curius consul again, when the unexpected death of the king freed them from fear. 9. Seeing Pyrrhus bearing down upon the author of his wound, the boy's mother was thoroughly aroused. 10. Seizing a tile, she poised it with both hands and hurled it down on the king's head.

XXI. MARCUS ATILIUS REGULUS.

1. Hanno came to Regulus with the intention of consuming time. 2. The Carthaginians ordered Cornelius to be put in chains until an agreement could be made in regard to peace. 3. Hanno must receive the same treatment that was accorded Cornelius a few years ago. 4. If you order me to be arrested, you will not be any better than your enemies. 5. Such an act does not become Roman dignity. 6. When a city is to be taken, we have to resort to engines of war. 7. Regulus compelled the Romans to prolong his military authority till the following year. 8. Regulus had a small farm of seven acres. 9. The senate ordered the losses of Regulus to be made good from the public treasury, that the means might not be lacking for tilling his farm. 10. The senate contracted for the support of his wife and children. 11. His successful exploits compelled the Carthaginians to beg aid of the Lacedaemonians. 12. Xanthippus, who was possessed of great military skill, utterly defeated Regulus. 13. I give my oath to return to Carthage in case I do not succeed in my mission. 14. Regulus will refuse to express his opinion in regard to the exchange of prisoners. 15. Regulus declares that it is useless for him to express his opinion, since he is not a senator while held by the oath he has given the enemy. 16. Since the Carthaginian captives are young men, they ought to be detained. 17. Although Regulus is not ignorant of the cruel enemy to whom he is going, he nevertheless thinks he must keep his oath.

XXII. QUINTUS FABIUS MAXIMUS.

1. Hannibal at the age of nine years was taken to an altar to swear eternal hatred against the Romans. 2. Saguntus was one of the states allied to the Romans. 3. Envoys will be sent from Rome to demand war or peace. 4. I will conquer Fabius by the same plan by which I have conquered previous generals. 5. Fabius decided to keep from doubtful battles, except so far as necessity compelled him to encounter Hannibal. 6. I shall neglect no opportunity of leading my army along the high ground. 7. If I come off victorious, my soldiers will not be sorry for their valorous conduct. 8. Thinking that Hannibal was now blockaded in the Falernian territory, Fabius and the Romans encamped on the mountains. 9. Hannibal forbade his soldiers to devastate Fabius's land. 10. By calling Fabius timid, Minucius aroused a sentiment of hatred against him among the Romans. 11. Minucius makes charges against Fabius in order that he himself may have greater authority in the army. 12. After the authority of the master of the horse had been made equal to that of the dictator, Minucius rashly engaged in battle. 13. He would have been defeated had not Fabius come to his help. 14. It became such a regular custom to present the guards with booty taken from the enemy, that the gates were opened whenever the young Tarentines gave a signal. 15. In the first watch Hannibal entered the city with ten thousand picked soldiers. 15. The Romans wished to find out whether Fabius was worthy of the cognomen Delayer. 17. There could be no doubt that Fabius had saved the Roman state by his policy of delay.

XXIII. PAULUS AEMILIUS ET TERENTIUS VARRO.

1. Against the will of his colleague, Varro drew up his line and gave the signal for battle. 2. The Romans had the sun and wind against them. 3. Give the signal for battle before Hannibal can draw up his line. 4. Let me escape from the enemy and flee to Venusia. 5. Take care not to make any mention of peace. 6. Maharbal urged Hannibal to make use of his victory. 7. He congratulates Hannibal because he knows how to win victories. 8. Varro thanks the Romans for coming out to meet him. 9. I shall refuse to accept any offices that you offer me. 10. The soldiers were in need of arms. 11. While the private wealth of the Romans was being brought forward for public use, Hannibal remained at Capua. 12. The Romans freed their slaves and gave them a chance to arm themselves. 13. Hannibal made no other demand of the Romans than that they arrest the soldier and send him to the Carthaginian camp. 14. The soldier said he had forgotten something, and that his return to the camp freed him from his oath. 15. The fact that the Romans arrested and sent the soldier to him, broke Hannibal's assurance more than anything else.

XXIV. MARCUS CLAUDIUS MARCELLUS.

1. Although Hannibal had gained the confidence of the Romans, he was routed. 2. He had approached the city of Casilinum with the hope of breaking down the gates. 3. Upon the cessation of hostilities he withdrew to Capua, where he kept his army in camp for the greater part of the winter. 4. Marcellus sent a message to the people of Casilinum to divide the grain equally. 5. They were so reduced to want that they gathered up the nuts which had floated down-stream to the town. 6. The Romans had thrown the nuts out, so that when gathered up they might relieve the want of the townspeople. 7. At last they removed the thongs and hides from their shields. 8. Must the siege be carried on until they listen to favorable terms of surrender? 9. Archimedes' life would be spared if he would tell the soldier his name. 10. Do not break into the enemies' houses for the purpose of plundering. 11. See that you do not place any of the ornaments of Syracuse in your own gardens. 12. Marcellus was not allowed to enter Rome in triumph. 13. On the day before entering the city, he went to the Alban mount to celebrate a triumph. 14. When the Sicilians asked Marcellus to make them his clients, he received them very kindly. 15. Throughout his life Marcellus patiently endured the complaints which people made in regard to him.

XXV. SCIPIO AFRICANUS.

1. Just as Scipio was about to free his father from danger, the enemy rushed upon him. 2. We must take no account of Scipio, for he is not yet old enough. 3. If the people wish to proceed to a vote, the tribune will give up his attempt. 4. We will not allow any others to form a plot for deserting Italy. 5. Whoever forms a plot to desert Italy will be given over to Scipio to be guarded. 6. The people are as much in despair as if it were not clear upon whom should be conferred supreme power. 7. Whoever will venture to undertake this command shall be sent to Spain as proconsul. 8. If the Romans make Scipio proconsul, they will be sorry for it when their enthusiasm cools. 9. It is Scipio's age, more than anything else, that we feel apprehensive about. 10. On the very day that the girl was brought to him, Scipio found that she was of high rank among the Celtiberi. 11. You may take this gold for yourself in addition to the dowry which your parents will give you. 12. We will requite Scipio by making the Celtiberi friends to the Romans. 13. Without Scipio's knowing it the Spaniards called him king. 14. Scipio asked them whether they were willing to call him by the name of commander. 15. In the estimation of the Romans the appellation of king is intolerable. 16. Scipio sent Laelius to Africa, hoping that he would succeed in winning over Syphax. 17. Hasdrubal happened to have been driven from Spain. 18. I have for a long time been equipping soldiers to serve with me in Africa. 19. It was evident that their service would be far from home and would present many dangers both on land and sea. 20. Scipio went to Carthage, a city in Africa, and had his men drawn up on the neighboring hills. 21. A message was sent him, to the effect that Zama was distant a march of five days. 22. It is believed that Scipio habitually consulted Jupiter as to the public welfare. 23. He had no hesitation in ordering the shrine to be opened. 24. Let the city be taken before daybreak. 25. What would you say if Scipio had not been willing to serve as his younger brother's lieutenant? 26. Antiochus sent back Scipio's son, although he had refused terms of peace. 27. There is no reason for your calling my integrity in question. 28. Do you ask whether we who conquered Hannibal have been made greedy by Asiatic gold? 29. Can we make the gods no other requital than to be ungrateful to them? 30. I propose that all of us go to the Capitol to offer worship to Jupiter. 31. They said that they had come, not to offer violence, but to see Scipio; they begged that he would not refuse to open his doors and let them in.
